

An Analysis of Khushwant Sigh' Train to Pakistan

P. Kanimozhi,

II M.A. English Literature,
Manonmaniam Sundaranar University Constituent College, Nagalapuram.

Guided by

B.Thangamarimuthu

Assistant Professor of English
Manonmaniam Sundaranar University Constituent College, Nagalapuram.

Abstract

The Partition of Republic of India was the method of dividing the sub-continent on sectarian lines, which occurred in 1947 as Republic of India gained its independence from British Empire. The northern half preponderantly Muslim, became nation of Islamic Republic of Pakistan and therefore the southern preponderantly Hindu became the Republic of India, the partition but desolate each Republic of India and Islamic Republic of Pakistan because the method claimed several lives in riots, rapes, murders and pillage. The two countries began their independence with ruined economies and lands while not a longtime, skilled system of state, not solely this, however conjointly concerning fifteen million individuals were displaced from their homes. The Partition of Republic of India was a vital event not solely within the history of the Indian landmass however in world history. Its chief reason was the communal thinking of each Hindus and Muslims; however the circumstances beneath that it occurred created it one among the saddest events of the history of Republic of India. No doubt, the Hindus and therefore the Muslims were inhabitation since long however they did not instill the emotions of harmony and unity among themselves. The fanatic leaders of each community compete a distinguished role in stoking the hearth of communalism. The partition was exceptionally brutal and huge in scale and unleashed misery and loss of lives and property as countless refugees fled either Islamic Republic of Pakistan or Republic of India.

Key words: Partition, Analysis, Republic

Introduction

Khushwant Sigh at a Glimpse

Khushwant Singh's name is certain to go down in Indian literary history mutually of the best historiographer and author, a forthright, political commentator associate degree an out-standing observer and social critic. He's referred to as one in all India's distinguished men of letters with a world name, besides, being a major post-colonial author in English language. He's far-famed for his clear-cut ism, wit and a deep passion for poetry. His assessment and comparison of social and activity traits of individuals from Asian nation and West is packed with outstanding wit. In Gregorian calendar month 2000, he was given the "honest man of the year Award by the Sulabh International welfare work organization for his spirit and honesty in his good incisive writing at the award ceremony. The then Chief minister of Andhra Pradesh delineate him a “wry author and depraved believer in human goodness with a devil may-care perspective and a stouthearted mind.

The Indian External affairs minister aforementioned that the key of Khushwant Singh’s success lay in his learning and discipline and his belief within the veneer of the superficiality. Khushwant Singh has worldwide audience. He has written for pretty much all major national and international newspaper in Asian nation and abroad. He has additionally had various radio appearances reception and internationally and had an additional normal career as a author. His book, “A history of Sikhs”, remains of the simplest, well researched and learned works of the Sikhs. He has additionally written many novels, each fiction and prose, that are translated into several languages. His novel Train to Pakistan won him international acclaim and Grove press Award in 1954, he's best- marketing author of over eighty English publications. Asian nation nowadays delineate him as ‘the capital’s best far-famed living monument. Khuswant Singh was awarded the Padma Bhushan in 1974. 10 years later, in associate degree act of spirit on June eight, 1984, every day once the attack on the Golden temple, he drove to Rashtrapati Bhavan and came the framed citation to the president of Asian nation, Giani Zail Singh, additionally a Sikh in protest at the storming of the Golden temple, but in 2007 Indian government awarded Singh a fair a lot of prestigious honor, the Padma Vibhushan. Briefly Khushwant Singh could be a man larger than life – a professional person, diplomat, critic, Journalist, novelist, historian, naturalist and an official, all rolled into one.

Theme of Partition in Train to Pakistan

Khuswant Singh’s Novel “Train to Pakistan” brings forth an image of inhumane horrors enacted on the Indo Pakistan border throughout the partition days of August 1947. It tells the tragic tale of the partition of Republic of India and Pakistan and therefore the events that followed, which is able to be remembered jointly of the blackest chapters of human history. Simply on the eve of independence, Republic of India was partitioned off inflicting an excellent upheaval within the whole continent. Independence brought in its wake one amongst the bloodiest carnages within the history of Republic of India, the consequence of this, was that twelve million had to escape their home nearly 1,000,000 were killed.

The painful and spine chilling events of 1947 had agitated the religion of the people within the innate citizenry. It had driven them into a state of surprise over what man has made from man. To Khushwant Singh, this was a amount of nice sophistication and crisis of values, a distressing and disintegrating amount of his life. The beliefs, he had cherished all his life were shattered. Giving vent to his inner struggle and agony, he says: ‘the beliefs that I had cherished all my life were shattered. I had believed in the innate goodness of the common man but the division of India had been accompanied by the most savage massacres known in the history of the country. He says, I had believed that we Indians were peace loving and nonviolent that we were concerned with matters of the spirit while rest of the world was involved in the pursuit of material things. After the experience of autumn 1947, I become an angry middle aged man, who wanted to show his disenchantment with the world.. I decided to try my hand at writing.

The sinister and venomous impact of partition and therefore the outrage it spawned on him has been realistically expressed in scalding attack in Train to Asian nation. Originally entitled Mano Majra. The novel portrays with daring and unrelenting realism the brutal story of political hate and violence throughout the turbulent and fateful days that preceded and followed the partition of British Bharat once spirit of communal hysteria and fanatical zeal for self – expression was fanning and incompetent with the plenty. Each national was wedged within the holocaust. Nobody might stay aloof; no one can be trusty to be impartial. It's true that partition touched the full country and Singh try within the novel is to work out events from the purpose of read of the folks of Mano Majra, alittle village that is taken into account to be the scene of this novel. As P.C.Car writes, Singh weaves a narrative around life during this village, creating the village an example representing a bigger world”.

Khushwant Singh recreates a small village within the Punjabi country and its folks in this fateful summer, once the flood of refugees and therefore the inter-communal bloodletting from geographic region to the North West Frontier eventually touches them. Several standard men and ladies are mazed, misused and torn apart. The foremost heart – ripping passage within the book is once the govt. makes the choice to move all the Muslim families from Mano Majra to Asian nation. The dumbstruck villagers are overtaken by events.

The Muslims leave with the barest minimum of their meager belongings at intervals 10 minutes and therefore the Non-Muslim neighbors don't get an opportunity to mention au revoir. The complete scene is painful at several levels; significantly the poorness during which these folks lived, the uncertainty, they were thrown into and therefore the eclipse of people's humanity. Train to Asian nation is Khushwant Singh's Supreme accomplishment. It's one in every of the best realistic novels of Post-world war II Indo Anglo-Saxon fiction. It's a well thought out structure, a well- formed plot, Associate in Nursing interesting narrative and fantastically portrayed characters. Its several notable options – symbolic framework, significant atmosphere and a robust means of expression and magnificence. Khushwant Singh has accurately pictured the $64000 image of the adverse effects of partition and therefore the suffering that individuals were created to expertise.

Khushwant Singh upheld his distinctive mirror to replicate upon the physical torture and psychological outburst that became the order of the day, once the division of the sub-continent into Bharat and Asian nation. He paints a vivid image of the separation between Hindus, Muslims and Sikhs within the summer of 1947. The novel in brief portrays the problems of Independence and partition victimization it as a method to explore different issues that then emerge because the larger image of the devastation and bloody birth of countries

References

1. Singh, Khushwant. Train to Pakistan, New Delhi: Orient Longman, 1956.
2. Anand, Mulk Raj. Private Life of An Indian Prince, Delhi: Arnold Heinemann, 1983.
3. Bhattacharya, Bhabani. Shadow From Ladakh, Delhi: Hind Pocket Books, 1966.
4. Asnani, Shyam M. Critical Responses to Indian English Fiction, New Delhi: Mittal Publication, 1985.
5. --- New Dimensions of Indian English Novel. Delhi: Doaba House, 1987.
6. --- Critical Response to Indian English Fiction. Delhi: Mittal Publications, 1985.